I have been trading magic-based skills and skills that are useful in MMOs and RPGs. tl 12.2 - 12.5 - please see the notes and remember to keep.Q: my objective-c app on the app store crashes on calling [self presentViewController:navigationController animated:YES completion:nil]; my objective-c app on the app store crashes on calling the following line [self presentViewController:navigationController animated:YES completion:nil]; the app store seems not to be able to approve the following lines @synthesize navigationController; navigationController = [[UINavigationController alloc] initWithRootViewController:self.window.rootViewController]; [self presentViewController:navigationController animated:YES completion:nil]; self.window.rootViewController = navigationController; i tried it in 3 different ways self.window.rootViewController.navigationController=navigationController; self.window.rootViewController = navigationController; [self.window makeKeyAndVisible]; this is my first app on app store, so please help me to find out where i am wrong A: I have not experienced this problem, but it is very unlikely. The problem would be in a "normal" case. It seems you're creating the navigation controller when rootViewController already exists, and that you're trying to present the viewController on the window/rootViewController. One possible explanation for the crash is that you're trying to do this on an iPhone without rootViewController. Try assigning an empty viewController to window.rootViewController first.
